

An update from the island of Ireland 17 July 2021

I hope that you, your teams, and your families are all doing well during this ongoing period of uncertainty for the tourism and travel industry across the world. Today, I'm pleased to confirm that from July 19th Ireland will be welcoming visitors from Great Britain who have valid proof of vaccination or have valid proof of recovery from COVID in the last 180 days. For those with valid proof of vaccination with an EMA approved vaccine or recovery from COVID in the past 180 days no travel-related testing or quarantine will be necessary.

For those who do not have valid proof of vaccination, they will need to:

- present evidence of a negative result from a RT-PCR test taken within 72 hours prior to arrival into Ireland
- self-quarantine for 14 days
- if you receive a negative result from a RT-PCR test taken from day 5 onwards after arrival in to Ireland, you will be able to leave quarantine.

Ireland will be applying an 'emergency brake' mechanism that will be coordinated at EU level to react swiftly to the emergence of a variant of concern or variant of interest. In the event that this 'emergency brake' mechanism is applied to Great Britain the requirements will change and more detail can be found on the Irish Government website.

Before arriving into Ireland, GB visitors will need to complete a Passenger Locator Form. The form will be checked prior to departure to Ireland by the relevant carrier and visitors may be asked to provide the vaccination certificate indicated on their form. On arrival in Ireland, spot checks will be carried out on proof of vaccinations and negative RT-PCR tests as appropriate. Unfortunately, the introduction of these additional checks may cause some disruption to journeys and visitors may experience delays so visitors should give themselves extra time either side of departure and arrival.

From July 19th, children between the ages of 12 and 17, must have a negative RT-PCR test to travel into Ireland, even with fully vaccinated or recovered adults. Children under 12 do not need to take a RT-PCR test prior to travelling to Ireland. If there are any further changes we will update you or please check the Irish Government website for the latest information.

It is important to note that only those fully vaccinated or with proof of recovery from COVID-19 in the past 180 days will be able to avail of indoor hospitality during their stay in Ireland. It is anticipated that this will apply from July 26th. The NHS COVID Pass or other proof of vaccination can be used as proof of this. Those staying in hotels can avail of the indoor hospitality options within the hotel.

For visitors travelling from Great Britain and staying overnight in Northern Ireland, they should take a rapid lateral flow device test (LFD) before you begin your journey and should only travel if the test is negative. They should also take an LFD test on days two and eight of their stay. No one should travel to Northern Ireland if they have COVID-19 symptoms or have received a positive COVID-19 result. Visitors from Great Britain to Northern Ireland do not need to fill in a Passenger Locator Form if they are travelling from within the Common Travel Area ((United Kingdom, Republic of Ireland, Isle of Man, and Channel Islands) and they have not been outside the CTA in the last 10 days. For more information please see the Northern Ireland Government website

The tourism industry right across the island of Ireland are very much looking forward to welcoming back your clients from overseas and will ensure they enjoy their visit. The health and safety of all our visitors continues to be the priority, and we will ensure they are protected alongside a very warm Irish welcome and a great holiday experience.

We know and understand the very great difficulty uncertainty causes for your business and will continue to do everything we can to help and will update you on any developments as they take place. If you have any further questions, please talk to the Tourism Ireland team in London or Glasgow who will be happy to help and provide answers where they can.

Many thanks for your ongoing support for Tourism Ireland and the tourism industry on the island of Ireland. We very much value your business and look forward to working with you to rebuild it in the months and years ahead.

Best wishes

Niall Gibbons
